Re: *Jennifer Davenport, Attorney General of the State of New Jersey v. Glock, Inc., et al., Docket No. ESX-C-000286-24 — Subpoena Duces Tecum

[REDACTED]

We write concerning the subpoena duces tecum served on you in the above-referenced action.

The Attorney General is not seeking any customer-identifying information, personally identifiable information, or individual customer records. In particular, the Attorney General's Request #1 regarding "all sales" only seeks aggregate information concerning sales and/or transfers of Glock handguns to New Jersey customers in whatever form you maintain or can reasonably provide that information.

For example, responsive information may be provided in summary or aggregate form, such as total sales or transfers by year, model, customer/dealer category, or other similar non-customer-identifying categories.

The Attorney General is prepared to work cooperatively and reasonably with you. If the information is maintained in a particular report, spreadsheet, accounting system, point-of-sale system, or other business record format, please let us know, and we would be happy to discuss an efficient approach that limits burden on you while providing the relevant aggregate information.

The Attorney General is also willing to work cooperatively regarding the scope and form of production in response to any other Request. If you have questions, concerns, or believe that a particular request would be burdensome as written, please contact the undersigned:
